About Me

For the last 20 years, I have worked with government agencies, large and small companies. My generalist career allowed me to work with administrative processes, marketing and sales. As a technology enthusiast, I realized the importance and impact of tech in our lives, making me rethink my career.

Currently, I am in a career transition and looking for my first opportunity as a Junior Front-End Developer. I know that a career transition can be a long and difficult process. I believe that my abilities like flexibility, teamwork, retentive, resilience, and self-determination, which I have acquired through the experience, along with my professionalism and strong work ethic, will help me in this new career path.
